

SENIOR INTERACTION DESIGNER

Second Story is looking for you because you are a very talented interaction designer.

A LITTLE BIT ABOUT YOU:

You have an amazing, rock solid portfolio that demonstrates beautiful, compelling, and usable interaction design. You confidently navigate the waters of interaction, diving deep into content to sort out, organize, and communicate complex ideas in enchanting and inspirational ways.

You are well versed in all the tools of your trade and sometimes you explore new tools to communicate your creative vision. You have at least 3 years of relevant design experience, and you feel comfortable working in a fast-paced, collaborative, creative studio environment.

You practice strong interpersonal, communication and problem-solving skills. You are able to present your work with confidence and yet are open to constructive feedback. You have a sense of humor and posses a positive, flexible attitude.

A LITTLE BIT ABOUT THE POSITION:

This talented individual lead the creative execution of large-scale interactive media experiences. They will utilize their proven understanding of interaction not only on the web but beyond, where innovative technologies, non-traditional interfaces, and physical space converge to immerse visitors in memorable experiences. As a core part of a project team, this hybrid designer will be an integral part of defining a project's creative trajectory from early strategy to the development of visual, physical, motion, and interaction design all the way to implementation.

This is an exceptional opportunity for a rewarding career to inform, inspire, educate, enchant, and entertain—as opposed to market, and sell—audiences through diverse projects for significant and influential cultural institutions. This position is located in Portland, Oregon, and provides a competitive, comprehensive salary with a benefits package that includes medical, dental, disability, and an employer-contributed 401(k).

A LITTLE BIT ABOUT US:

Since 1994, Second Story has conceived of, designed, and developed hundreds of award-winning interactive media experiences in diverse formats that pioneer ever more effective ways to inspire wonder, connect audiences to ideas and information, and 'elevate the art of storytelling.'
